Hot Desking

Hot desking is a feature that allows users who work at other users' desks to log into the desk phone and have their phone number and busy lamp field/speed-dials show up. This is especially handy for departments like Student Services Health Sciences, or Library, but is available for all employees who have a NTCC phone number assigned to them.

When you are done working at a desk/phone, you are able to sign out of the phone to return it to its original configuration. If you accidentally forget to sign out, the phone will automatically sign you out 9 hours after logging in.

Hot desking has to be enabled on the phone you are attempting to log into. While we strive to enable hot desking on all phones, we may have missed a phone. If, when you attempt to log into hot desking on a phone, you receive a message stating : "the requested service is not available on this device," please submit a helpdesk ticket and IT will enable the feature.

This process takes 3-5 minutes to complete. Hot desking is only recommended when you intend to spend more than an hour at a desk.

If your docking station is connected through the phone, you will lose access to the internet and other resources while the phone reboots. This outage typically lasts for less than 1 minute.
